As the Director of the Videezy stock marketplace, I cultivated a community of artists and users working to simplify their creative workflow. I built and managed a remote team of international artists and contributors where we created and distributed creative content. Directly under the CEO, I worked very closely to improve the product by launching site features, business strategies, and products in an agile environment. I developed and maintained valuable partnerships with other leaders in the stock industry, directed high quality studio productions, and implemented the processes for template creators and stock contributors. I wrote and implemented the video guidelines for contributors and footage reviewers and created SVG animations for the sites, and collaborated to build the Content Manager and the Automated Enrollment Funnel.
