Dear reader

my name is Brett Burbridge and I'm a proud father of 2 sons and grandfather of 4 (at time of writing). I am based in the UK Bedford, with my partner and her 2 sons, working out of a self converted studio in the garden.

I've been a graphic designer/illustrator for the past 30 years, mainly working in the advertising, new product development and construction sectors.

Over the last few years I've been concentrating more on illustrative ventures. These days I work digitally in Clip Studio Paint, Photoshop, Krita, Illustrator, Z Brush, and Gravity Sketch, although I do like to paint traditionally in oils, acrylics and watercolours on personal projects in my spare time.

A good while ago, I started drawing comics and fell in love with storytelling through imagery, collaborating with the writer to help create fantastical worlds. I've been a 2000AD competition finalist on 2 separate occasions.

My goal is to spend more time illustrating projects that excite me, ideally in the fantasy and science fiction genres, whilst listening to a good audio book.

In my free time, I've studied jiu-jitsu attaining a black belt and enjoy reading, walking, fishing, scuba diving, sculpting, a spot of gardening and all things art related.

I'm always up for a challenge, and love collaborating on interesting projects. If there's anything else you'd like to know/see then please do get in touch!
